Rachel S. Schneider, M.A., MHC is the author of Making Sense: A Guide to Sensory Issues, which was published by Sensory World in February 2016. As a writer, mental health counselor, delayed-diagnosis SPD adult, and pillar of the adult SPD community, Rachel writes the popular sensory blog - Coming to My Senses, and authored the hit articles "The Neurotypicals' Guide to Adults with Sensory Processing Disorder" and "What Everyone Should Know About Sensory Processing Disorder." Rachel lives in New York City with her husband and handler, Josh. Kelly Dillon is a writer and illustrator based in the Hudson Valley. She chronicles her life with Sensory Processing Disorder on the illustrated blog, Eating off Plastic.

Finally, there is a book written for kids with SPD by adults with SPD! With use of real world experiences, Rachel and Kelly give the children I treat others to relate to. Sensory Processing Disorder is explained in a fun, yet clear way; you would think Rachel and Kelly were occupational therapists working in this field for years! This book is bound to capture the attention of a wide range of individuals struggling with understanding and ÄfÄçÄ ¨ Ä œfetting inÄfÄçÄ ¨ Ä „ç in the SPD world. They are able to normalize SPD in a way that will promote confidence and pride in individual sensory differences. For years, I have been asked by parents for good recommendations for kid books on SPD. Sensory Like You will definitely be my new go-to recommendation for both kids and pre-teens!

My kid was so excited to get this book. I have Rachel's adult guide to spd. We were excited the kids could have a guide as well. Cartoon Rachel, and cartoon Kelly, guide you through a wonderful illustrated educational study about spd. Silly, smart, and fun.

This lovely book fills a big gap. Reassuring, wise, and witty, "Sensory Like You" would be as great a gift for a young child as it would be for a grandparent, teacher, or other adult who maybe doesn't quite "get it" yet.

Our kid's favorite book. Highly recommended for kids with SPD.
